Sustainable Practices:

We recycle everything we possibly can and use minimal packaging. We don't use wasteful gold foil or printed cases.

The majority of the grapes we use come from within 10 miles of our production facility.

The majority of our wine is then sold locally.

Our grapes are grown at either organic or sustainably minded conventional vineyards that conserve soil, plant cover crops and conserve water.

We employ a few local people a year at our production facility where our cellars are built into the ground to maintain the perfect temperature.

We used this method for the last 22 years and just recently installed a small air conditioner to use only on the hottest days.

We use real cork to close our wine bottles not plastic fake ones.

Briceland Vineyards is owned and operated by Maggie Carey and Joe Collins.

They've been making wine on the North Coast for the last 23 years.

They moved to their home in Briceland from the Bay Area with a deep desire to produce local wine from grapes grown in this rich area.
