Sustainable Practices:

Muddy Waters Coffee roasts 100 percent certified organic coffee from around the world.

Although the company does not pay to label their beans as such, preference is given to beans that are Fair Trade and bird friendly.

That means that not only are the beans produced under organic standards without pesticides or synthetic fertilizers but workers are paid a fair wage to grow them.

Also, the beans are often shade-grown or bird friendly.

This means of production allows farmers to maintain a canopy of trees above their organic coffee beans, giving a healthy home to birds that would otherwise lose their habitat to pollution and clear cutting.

Owned By:

Chris Nichols owns and runs Muddy Waters Coffee. He roasts and delivers all the beans himself.

His one-man operation generates little waste and is very efficient.

It's important to note that Muddy Waters Coffee is a separate business from Muddy's Hot Cup which serves this coffee.
